

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. This use of the airwaves constitutes an in-kind donation to a political campaign by a corporation as a means of influencing both the election and the administration that may take office after the election.

As a citizen of this contry I seriously object to this illegal use of the airwaves.
